

Half of county to pay more for car tags

BY TRACI BONNEY

A new car tag increase for older vehicles will affect nearly half the cars in Hancock County, according to Tax Assessor/Collector Edward Murtagh.

Murtagh said 1991 statistics show that approximately 5,845 automobiles and 3,517 trucks in Hancock County are 10 years or more old. The owners of these vehicles can expect to pay $10 to $15 more for their license tags, beginning next month.

The State Tax Commission decided last week to double the value-based local taxes because those taxes were based on a vehicle worth about $330. Assessed at a third of its value, a $330 vehicle's tag cost would be based on a $100 value.

Commission officials said that by raising the assessed value from $100 to $200 (making the true value $660), they are using a more realistic value to figure the tax.

Murtagh said this means about 9,362 vehicle owners in the county can expect to pay more for the tags on their old cars and trucks.

He said he received the news of the tag increase while attending a Tax Assessors Association meeting in Jackson Tuesday. While he and several other county tax assessors were meeting to plan the association's state convention, the Tax Commission's new chairman, Ed Buelow Jr., visited the group and gave them the news.

"We were all looking at each other, saying 'What?' It was the first we had heard about it. We were not consulted or asked to participate in any discussion on the matter."

"Mr. Buelow said the commission had made the decision, and we told him no one would care about that, that we would get the flack for it.

"We left in shock," Murtagh commented that while he agrees that some vehicles are undervalued, he thinks this increase is the wrong way to rectify the problem.

"This is going to hurt the poor people and those living on a fixed income. You don't drive a 10-year-old car because you want to; you drive it because you can't afford a new one."

"I think it's a bad thing. They were talking about decreasing car tags, and now this. I think this comes at a bad time."

Stennis Airpark to be readied for limited passenger service

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Stennis Airpark may begin receiving up to four chartered flights per day by October, reported Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission director Harold "Buz" Olsen.

Olsen disclosed to commission members Monday, "Serious interest by Casino Magic Corporation to establish charter flights for gaming customers by October 1, 1992."

Airport committee chairman Pete Beebe said, Anna Cohen of the Atlanta regional office of the FAA (Federal Aviation Administration) completed a tour of the airpark and listed changes to be made and equipment which will be needed prior to certification.

He said the major cost for the improvements would be the purchase of a fire engine/crash truck and a generator/air-start unit.

"We have been in touch with the Kiln Volunteer Fire Department," Beebe stated, "and have discussed the possibility of working out an arrangement where they would have an engine at the airpark 15 minutes prior to any aircraft landing."

"They have given us a list of the equipment they would need to serve the airpark, and it comes to a $2,500 investment."

Olsen commented, the commission may be able to obtain a grant from FAA to assist in payment for the improvements.

Beebe added there were other equipment needs listed by Cohen, along with some changes and additions to landing strip markings and park signs.

Olsen said, "This is the first serious step in getting the airport moving."

Gene Phillips, Stennis Airpark on-base operator, interjected, the commission could expect to collect a minimum of $100,000 per month in revenues should the charter services become reality.

Port Bienville spur line loan takes minor detour

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission must issue bonds to obtain a zero interest $100,000 loan from Coast Electric.

Attorney Robert Genin told commission members that because it is a public entity, the county may legally borrow money only by issuing bonds. Coast Electric, through the Rural Electric Power Association Program, offered the commission a $100,000 loan under a program to enhance economic development.

The loan requires the commission to match the funds and repay the loan within five years at about $16,000 a month.

The commission plans to build a 1,800-foot rail spur line, adjacent to the Port Bienville Industrial Park railroad, to accommodate 18 to 20 more railroad cars.

Genin said that though the commission will spend no additional funds to issue the bonds, the time and paperwork involved makes obtaining the loan more complicated than necessary.

"The way it will be worked," Genin explained, "is for the county to declare this an Urban Renewal Project."

"The county will have to send it to the planning commission for approval and then they will issue the bonds at zero percent interest."

"I don't think there will be many bidders on zero percent interest bonds, so probably Coast Electric will be the sole bidder."

Engineer Carlos Cordon recommended the board accept the low-base bid of McHann Railroad Services for the construction of the spur line. He said the $151,970 bid was well below the $180,000 he originally estimated for the cost of the project.

The commission accepted the bid and in a separate action approved a resolution requesting the board of supervisors to issue bonds in the amount of $100,000.

Hancock deputy stabbed

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Hancock Sheriff's Department Deputy Dennis Tartavouille was in surgery Wednesday afternoon at press time after sustaining stab wounds in an altercation on Fricke Road.

Tartavouille was stabbed in the lower abdomen and received lacerations on the arms while attempting to fend off the attack, according to Sheriff Ronnie Peterson.

Melvin A. Stigge, 47, of 9155 Fricke Rd., Bay St. Louis, was charged with aggravated assault on a police officer, said Peterson. He is incarcerated in the Hancock County Justice Facility, with no bond.

"We responded to several calls about a subject on Fricke Road at approximately 2 p.m. The officers arrived on the scene and called for back up," said the sheriff.

"Tartavouille had just arrived, when the subject approached his car with an Army bayonet behind his back. He began stabbing the deputy, then fled back into the trailer."

Additional calls for backup resulted in some 50-75 law enforcement officers surrounding the trailer, said Peterson.

"We could see him lying on a

Bay City Council applies for grant to use on depot

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Bay St. Louis City Council is looking for money to use in development of the old CSX railroad depot and grounds.

Clerk of Council Mike Cuevas, during her report at Tuesday's meeting, asked the Council to authorize the city's application for a forestry grant which she said could be used for the depot and grounds development. Cuevas said the grant may range from $1,000 to $15,000 or more.

The Council unanimously approved her request. Cuevas told them she plans to work with South Mississippi Planning and Development District in putting together the grant request.

MONEY MATTERS

The Council accepted term bid recommendations from Mayor Edward Favre on road materials, concrete, fire hydrants, culverts, chlorine, water and gas meters.

Two requests for advertising were approved unanimously, but a third request received a split vote. The Council voted 4-0 (Jim Rutherford was absent) to approved $72.10 for an ad in

Gambit magazine and $257.50 for a 50-inch ad in The Sea

Day care abuse cases are settled

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

A Lutheran Church of the Pines Day Care worker was found not guilty Tuesday on a charge of contributing to the delinquency or abuse of a child.

The charges stemmed from a March incident in which 14 allegations of the use of tape to close the mouths and eyes of the children during nap times, initiated an investigation by sheriff department deputies.

Agnes Parker was found not guilty of two counts of contributing to the delinquency or abuse of a child, prosecuting attorney John Genin reported.

"Two counts on Parker were dismissed prior to trial," Genin explained.

Day care worker Shirley Crockett pleaded guilty on April 28 to one count of contributing to the delinquency or abuse of a child. At that time, Judge Lee Klein sentenced Crockett with a $250 fine plus court costs and a 30-day suspended sentence, with the stipulation that she not work in a child care facility for two years.

Genin stated, "These are the type of things in which there are no winners."

I would like to take issue with the many negative comments I have heard regarding Hancock Medical Center and some of our local doctors.

Recently I was hospitalized on two separate occasions at HMC; both were of the emergency nature, and my need to be stabilized was quickly met by the emergency room staff.

Due to the type of surgery needed, I was transferred to another hospital. Though I received excellent care at the other hospital, it was not the personal care afforded to me at HMC.

Were it not for the knowledge and dedication of the emergency room and general staff of the hospital, and especially Dr. James Crittenden, I would not be alive to write this letter of appreciation today. Let us support our doctors and hospitals rather than criticize them!

Sincerely,
 Larry J. Bennett

Bay resident killed by lightning Saturday

A Bay St. Louis man died Saturday morning after lightning struck him while he was fishing in Louisiana.

Brian Herbert, 32, was fishing with a friend on Round Lake, 20 miles north of Grand Isle, in a 15-foot boat when he was hit.

Another fisherman reported the incident at 9:40 a.m., and a Coast Guard helicopter arrived at 10:46 a.m., according to Coast Guard officer Jim Munro.

The report stated that Herbert was pronounced dead at West Jefferson Medical Center in Marrero, La., after being transported there by helicopter. Munro said Herbert's fishing partner, Ernest Forbes of Westwego, was uninjured.

The bad weather also took victims west of Hwy. 603 on the old Kiln-Picayune Road.

After a trip to Florida, Elus Depreo discovered eight of his cows lying dead under a tree.

Depreo said he made the discovery Monday around 9 a.m. Deputy sheriff James Ladner responded to the call, and he and Depreo found that lightning had hit the tree the cows were under when Depreo found them.

"It was definitely lightning," Depreo said. "You can see on the tree where the bark popped off and burned."

Plauche' seeks District 93 House post

Hester Plauche' has announced his candidacy for the Mississippi House of Representatives, District 93.

Plauche' cited needed improvement in economic development, education and a need for strong support for law enforcement as some of the reasons he chose to run for office.

"We face very serious problems here in Mississippi, problems that require hard work to correct," Plauche' stated.

He stressed the need to return the power of government to the people, and not keep it with the politicians.

"The people of Mississippi deserve to have initiative and referendum powers, and the right to decide on the issues facing our children," Plauche' said.

Hester Plauche'

Another issue the candidate intends to address is car tags. He stated a need to lower the price citizens pay each year in car tag taxes. "The citizens of our state are hit each year with a very high tax burden. There are many other options to help our state meet its financial requirements without having this repetitive tax."

"Through my years of business experience, I have learned how to be responsive and responsible to the people. My involvement in local organizations, such as the Hancock County School District, the American Cancer Society, the Hancock and Harrison County Vo-Tech Advisory Committees, and several local civic associations, I have acquired an insight to what the people are saying in South Mississippi. The people are saying that we need a change in Jackson," Plauche' said.

He stated "A vote for me will be a vote for the people's voice in Jackson."

Plauche' currently serves on the Hancock County Republican Executive committee and the Mississippi Coast Restaurant and Beverage Association Board of Directors. He is a graduate of Tulane University and is married to the former Prima Thomas-Wusnack. He is the father of three children. He also serves as the president of Reef Enterprises, the owner of The Reef and The Cafe Reef restaurants.

Waveland child critical after accident

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

A five-year-old Waveland child remains in critical condition after suffering injuries in a two-vehicle accident in Long Beach Monday, reported Long Beach Fire and Rescue officials.

David Bass, battalion chief for the Long Beach department said Laura Lynn Guidara, 33, was traveling west on Highway 90 in a Camaro when driver Bob Moneyham and passenger Ramon Johnson, both 18 and of Long Beach, in a Ford Taurus, attempted to cross Hwy. 90 and head north onto Trautman Avenue.

Bass stated Guidara, her son Troy and three-year-old daughter, along with Moneyham and Johnson, were treated by the Fire and Rescue team as well as Mobile Medic.

All five people were transported to Gulfport Memorial Hospital.

Troy Guidara was evacuated by helicopter to the trauma neurological intensive care unit of the University of South Alabama Medical Center.

He added that neither of the children were wearing seatbelts at the time of the accident.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

There are times when you hear stories without learning the details. It may be years later before you get all the facts.

This is a case of what happened to one of my high school classmates who was killed in an air plane crash.

I am talking about Edward (Eddie) Blake of Long Beach, who with his brother, commuted to St. Stanislaus.

Several of us had heard he was killed in an airplane crash.

A few days ago I received the copy of a letter which was sent to Stanislaus from a sister of Eddie's.

The sister, who resides in New Orleans, sent the information that a gym at Keesler Air Force Base and a Veterans of Foreign Wars Post in Long Beach had been dedicated in memory of him.

The Keesler Gym was dedicated June 20, 1975, and the VFW Post on May 20, 1970.

Eddie was a captain in the United States Air Force and was killed on October 29, 1964, while participating in an aerial mission at the Vung Tau Gunnery Range near Bien Hoa.

Another classmate, Dave Treutel Sr., and I were talking after receiving the letter, and he had originally only heard about the same amount of news I had gotten.

Eddie's sister, Mrs. Louis (Peggy) Gehbauer, reported his wife and two sons, who were age five and three when he was killed, are seeking information on his school days.

After graduating from high school, Eddie enlisted in the U.S. Army in January 1954 (that was four months before I did) and after being discharged in 1956, he enlisted in the United States Air Force.

Later he was a B-47 aircraft commander, and joined the 1st Air Commando Squadron in Vietnam in May of 1964.

He was flying a A1E aircraft on a mission when his plane was lost in action, and he and his crew were killed.

I am hoping some of my classmates, or others who may have known Eddie Blake, may have some information on him.

If they have anything to share, I would suggest they call Brother Aquin at St. Stanislaus.

An objective view of the Mississippi work force

Where are the world's most technologically advanced submarine torpedoes being made?

The folks in Scott County can provide the answer.

Some 500 Mississippians employed in the Hughes Aircraft manufacturing plant in Forest are producing those high-tech torpedoes—among the most advanced weapons in the world.

The awarding of a Navy contract to build these advanced weapons at the Hughes operation in Scott County is "testimony to the people of Mississippi that you can build quality, high-technology products here as well as anybody anywhere in the world."

That was the statement of Dr. Scott Walker, assistant sector executive for aerospace and defense at Hughes Aircraft at a recent celebration in Forest.

All 500 employees, plus visitors, joined in the half-day celebration. Among those involved in the celebration was Navy Captain Dennis Witzenburg, a native of Iowa, who told his new-found Mississippi friends that if there ever is another war, the United States Navy will be prepared for it because of the excellence of the Mississippi work force.

Jimmy Heidel, director of the state's Department of Economic and Community Development, put it this way: "The most frequent comment I hear about the Mississippi work force is its loyalty."

Simply put, Hughes Aircraft has a new five-year contract for production of one of the world's most advanced military weapons because of the loyalty, pride, commitment and spirit of its Mississippi work force.

And, that's something in which we can all take pride.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Highway Dept. shells out cash for $18 million building

Around state government, the State Highway Department has become a world of its own, virtually untouchable even by the Legislature.

A testament to that fact is an $18.4 million, 10-story office building for the Highway Department which is rising now on almost an entire city block diagonally across from the State Capitol.

What is unique about the Highway Department building—which will house some 225,000 sq. ft., making it one of the largest office buildings in the city—is that it is being built entirely out of the department's cash kitty. No bonds or credit.

As the pile drivers could be heard pounding outside the Capitol while legislators struggled just a few weeks ago to raise the state sales tax—to provide desperately needed money to fund public schools and colleges and other programs—several lawmakers found the scene bitterly ironic.

While the Legislature was having to yank more taxes from the pockets of everyday Mississippians, how was it that the Highway Department had over $18 million bulging in its jeans to pay cash for a new office building?

Just cause we're frugal, the Highway Department would like to have the legislators believe. But there's more to the story.

State Highway Director John Tabb says the money for the building came out of accumulated interest earned by the Highway Department on investments of its idle funds, which usually stay at around $140 million.

Several years ago, the Highway Department convinced the Legislature to let it keep the interest from the investment of its deposited funds, rather than put it in the state general fund.

Sen. Dick Hall (R) of Jackson, the Senate Appropriations chairman, is one very unhappy legislator about the way the Highway Department holds its money close to the chest, keeping the Legislature in the dark.

"I know that every time I go over there to get some money for the general fund, they give me this story that they need every dime they have to build roads," Hall said. "So where did they get the $18 million to spend on an office building?"

Hall charged that "it is very difficult to dig into their (the Highway Department's) business and see what money comes in and how it is spent."

Because it has its own constant money stream from gasoline taxes and with elected commissioners over it, the Highway Department, Hall said, has become insulated from legislative scrutiny. "If we dealt with every agency the way we do with them, there would be no control over state government at all," he declared.

As to the Highway Department retaining interest from invested funds in its own kitty, Hall charged: "Why doesn't it have to put the interest into the general fund like everybody else?"

Tabb defended the Highway Department erecting its own building as a practical move since the agency is now paying over $600,000 a year in rent for its present offices. "This will allow us to consolidate all our people, including the State Aid Road division, in one building," he said.

Its new office building was not the only Highway Department gambit raising hackles on the necks of legislators last week. There was also the matter of a very expensive lawsuit involving the department now being tried in Jackson.

The suit was brought by a contractor for the I-110 loop at Biloxi which swings out over the beach on the Coast. The contractor is asking for around $9 million for a cost overrun he contends was caused by inadequate guidance and plans from the Highway Department.

So far, the lawsuit has cost the Highway Department $3.5 million in legal and expert witness fees, and the trial is still going on. Tabb admitted the case "has been a lot more costly

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator Trent Lott

Survey results reflect fiscal conservatism

Mississippians overwhelmingly registered their fiscal conservatism in response to a survey of half of the state's households.

More than 85 percent of the more than 35,000 people who responded to Senator Trent Lott's annual questionnaire support a Constitutional amendment to require a balanced budget; prefer spending any defense savings to reduce the federal deficit; support restoring a tax exemption for Individual Retirement Accounts; and oppose taxpayer funding of political campaigns for Congress.

"Many of the comments that I have heard from throughout the state have shown that Mississippians are fed up with a government that spends like there's no tomorrow," Lott said. "Quite frankly though, I was amazed at how lopsided the margins were on some of these questions. Many of the notes that people sent in with the questionnaire showed tremendous frustration and anger over Congress's appetite for spending."

Lott's annual survey was mailed to 435,000—or about half—of the homes in Mississippi earlier this spring. The questionnaire included 10 questions on issues that Congress is considering this year.

More than 70 percent of Mississippians responding also said that they support proposals to give parents the option to choose which schools their children will attend; support a cut in the capital gains tax; support term limits for Congress; and oppose direct financial aid to republics of the former Soviet Union.

Those responding to the survey also said they would support a free trade agreement with Mexico that would lower tariffs and ease trade barriers with America's neighbor.

And, Mississippians split almost evenly on the issue of national health care with 50.5 percent said they would support a national health care program even if it would require a tax increase, while 49.5 would not.

STREET TALK

What are your feelings on the car tag increase on vehicles 10 years and older?

"I hate to see it happen. I think it is very unjust 'cause too many older people on fixed incomes can't afford the additional cost."

Charles Snell
Bay St. Louis

"I think what they are trying to do is to get older cars off the road due to the pollution. They are aiming at the cars that use regular gas. It's just another way to collect revenues from the poorer people, the ones who can't afford it."

Bill Rollings
Waveland

"I personally feel people here pay enough for car tags. I recently moved back here from Texas where I paid $56 a year for my car tag. The fee there stays constant throughout the ownership of the car. Here I'm expecting to pay over $200. This increase targets the older people on fixed incomes. It is almost discriminatory."

Jodi Jones
Bay St. Louis

"I don't think it's a good thing 'cause most people who own cars 10 years or older can't afford to buy a newer one so why should they have to spend more on a tag. It is expensive enough as it is."

Cathy Hayward
Bay St. Louis

"It's unfair to the people with older cars. One thing, people with older cars can't afford to buy another. It targets the poor. If they would lower the cost of tags on newer cars maybe more people could afford one."

We must improve in these areas so that our children will inherit a better and stronger Mississippi.

Antique car race plans Picayune stop June 24

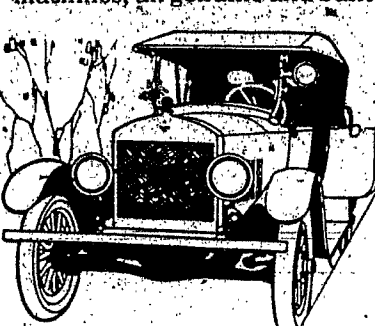

Picayune will host the 10th annual Interstate Batteries Great American Race Wednesday, June 24 as the antique vehicles in the coast-to-coast competition race through Mississippi.

The race cars will begin arriving at about 12:30 p.m., each taking a one-hour break for lunch. The last vehicle is expected to pull out at about 3:30.

The racers will be coming from an overnight stop in Mobile, Ala. and heading for their next layover in Baton Rouge, La. The Picayune stop is the only major stop in Mississippi and the best place for spectators from Southern Mississippi to see the race and enjoy an old-fashioned celebration.

The Great American Race includes up to 85 antique machines, all genuine and built from 1910 to 1941. The race starts this year in Charleston S.C. on June 21 and finishes in Costa Mesa, Calif. on July 4.

Race crews and spectators will experience "Magnolia Memories" as they take a trip back in time on Picayune's Goddard Boulevard. A Mississippi showboat will be the center attraction, featuring live musical entertainment of the 1800's and hosts in antebellum costume.

The U.S. Navy Ceremonial Band from Washington D.C., which accompanies the race across the United States, will perform at noon prior to the arrival of the first cars. The race cars will be parked on the boulevard while their crews are treated to a feast of Mississippi products including catfish, chicken and blueberries.

"Shine Time," a local show and exhibition open to all classic vehicles, will be held on the boulevard on race day, with awards for the best entries. There will also be food booths, local crafts and other festivities of interest to spectators.

As the first racer crosses the finish line the last will still be 71 miles distant. Each day's race covers 170 to 480 miles. The race normally runs on back roads and two-lane highways, avoiding interstates.

The race is a contest of precision driving, controlled speed and endurance. Using only analog time of day and stop watches, car speedometer and paper and pencil, teams try to match detailed driving instructions clocked to within 1/100th second accuracy by computer enhanced electronics. Clocking several times daily at secret checkpoints, teams are penalized a point for each second off schedule. Low score wins.

Defending champions Frank and Ray Currie of Anaheim, Calif. will try for two in a row in a 1920 Packard Speedway racer in which they won the $50,000 first prize last year. Dick Burdick, Rosanky, Texas, and Wayne Bell, Liverpool, N.Y., '89-90 champs, will be out for a third victory in a 1924 Bentley speedster.

Unique entries include a '34 Bentley from Japan, a '16 Mitchell from Canada, a '28 Auburn from New Zealand and a '20 Mercedes Superb Sports Tourer from Texas. There are cars whose names are long since gone from the automobile market such as Packard, Pierce-Arrow, Marmon, Durant, Stevens-Duryea, Hudson, Graham, Winton, Cord, Knox, DeSoto and Hupmobile.

For additional information, contact Jim Young, Picayune chairman, 798-9770.

or not to appropriate the money.

The ASRM, if funded, will be built at a plant in Iuka and tested at John C. Stennis Space Center. NASA has already spent about $600 million at the Iuka site, while Stennis Space Center is building a $50 million rocket testing plant and currently employs about 190 people in connection with ASRM.

Sen. Trent Lott said, "ASRM is important both to Mississippi and to NASA. This new rocket motor will allow the space shuttle to carry larger loads into space and provide greater safety for our astronauts."

Senate SCT committee supports ASRM funding

The Senate Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation voted Tuesday to fully fund NASA's Advanced Solid Rocket Motor.

NASA did not request funds for ASRM in its budget this year, but the House of Representatives conditionally authorized funding for the program. However, the funds have not yet been appropriated.

The Senate committee's action sends the matter to the full Senate for consideration. If the Senate approves the funding, the appropriations committee will have to decide whether

Q. As national cemetery offices are closed weekends, how can a burial for the following week be scheduled?

A. When a death occurs late in the week or on weekends or holidays, interment for the next week may be scheduled by calling the Biloxi National Cemetery, 388-6668, where a recorded telephone number will refer the caller to one of the three large cemeteries that are staffed on weekends. A member of the cemetery staff will verify eligibility and schedule burial at the local cemetery.

Q. Is service in the Persian Gulf War considered wartime service for VA benefit purposes?

A. Yes, Under Public Law 102-25, the Persian Gulf War Veterans' Benefits Act of 1991, the Persian Gulf period is defined as beginning August 2, 1990, and ending at a future date to be determined by presidential proclamation or by law.

Q. What is the definition of "surviving spouse" in order to qualify for Dependency and Indemnity Compensation?

A. A surviving spouse must have been married to the veteran at time of death for one year or more, or for any period if a child was born during or before the marriage.

Q. I pay my VA insurance premium every month. Do I have other payment options?

A. Yes. You can pay your premiums quarterly, semi-annually or annually at reduced amounts. If you receive VA disability or pension benefits, your insurance premiums can be deducted automatically from your monthly check. You can also use the new VA Matic option, whereby premiums are deducted each month from your checking account. Complete information on VA insurance programs can be obtained by calling 1-800-669-8477.

Q. I have a five-year level premium term insurance plan with VA. I would like to convert to one of the permanent plans. Will I have to take a physical to meet health requirements?

A. A five-year level premium term insurance plan can be converted without meeting health requirements at any time the policy is in force. If you are totally disabled, however, it cannot be converted as endowment policy.

Q. My father, who receives a VA pension, recently entered a nursing home where much of the expenses are paid for by Medicaid. Will he continue to receive his pension?

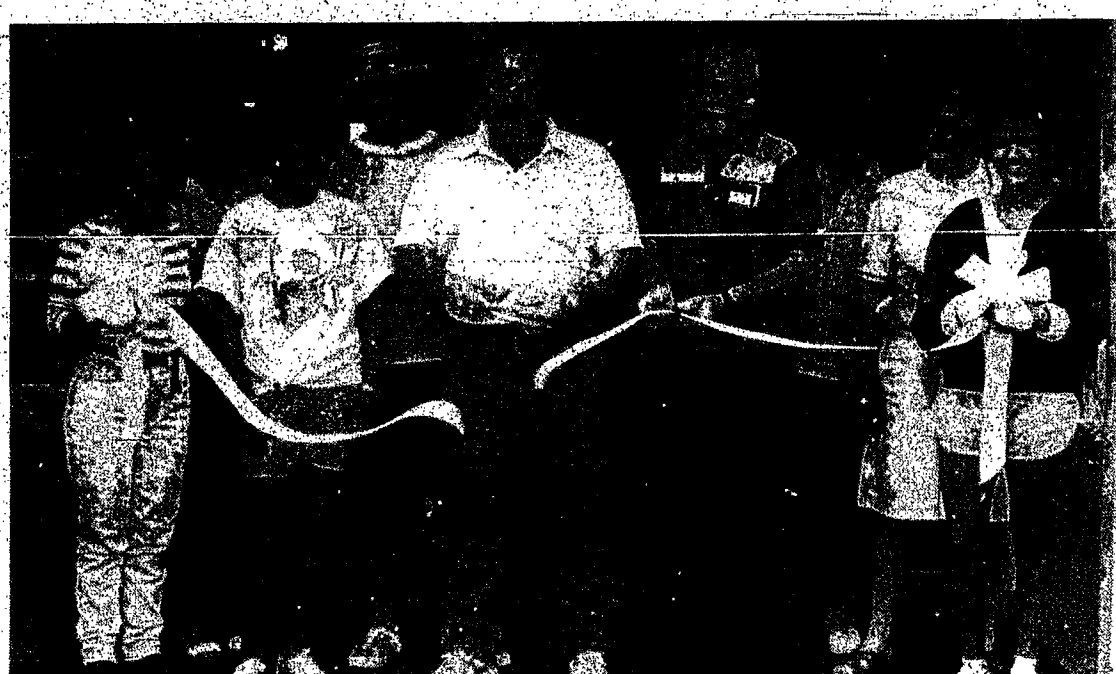

A. If your father has no dependents, his pension will be capped at $90 per month while his nursing home expenses are paid in whole or part by Medicaid.

Naval Oceanography activities at SSC remain fifth largest employer on Coast

The planned closure of the Institute for Naval Oceanography at Stennis Space Center will not affect other naval oceanography activities at the site, the Navy announced recently.

The Naval Oceanography Command Headquarters, its largest subordinate activity, the Naval Oceanographic Office, and the SSC branch of the Naval Research Laboratory, will continue to operate as usual, according to T.V. Freddan, the Naval Oceanography Command's public affairs officer.

The INO, which employs 32 workers, is a small contractor activity located at SSC. It is expected that qualified INO personnel would be offered the opportunity for continued employment with the government or academia. The other three naval oceanography activities at SSC, which combined include more than 1,800 personnel, are the fifth largest employer on the Gulf Coast. Elements of the naval oceanography program have existed in South Mississippi since the late 1970s.

The Naval Oceanography Command is a worldwide organization comprising more than 3,000 officer, enlisted and civilian personnel at more than 60 locations. Its mission is to provide oceanographic, meteorological and mapping, charting and geodetic products to operating U.S. Navy, Department of Defense and Allied forces. It is headed by Rear Admiral John E. Chubb, the only naval flag officer to lead an operational command in Mississippi.

The SSC branch of the Naval Research Laboratory hosts oceanography and sea-floor processing research and development efforts for the U.S. Navy. Its commanding officer in Washington, D.C., is Captain Paul G. Gaffney II. Commander Larry R. Elliott is officer in charge of the SSC branch.

Pet Haven Veterinary Hospital earns accreditation

Pet Haven Veterinary Hospital of Bay St. Louis is now an accredited hospital member of the American Animal Hospital Association. Less than 14 percent of the small animal veterinary facilities in the United States are accredited hospital members of the association. To achieve this distinction, Pet Haven Veterinary Hospital voluntarily participated in a comprehensive, quality assessment evaluation of its facility, equipment, practice methods and pet health care management.

In order to maintain hospital member accreditation, the hospital must be evaluated regularly by the association's trained consultants.

The American Animal Hospital Association is an international association of more than 11,000 veterinarians who treat companion animals, such as dogs and cats.

Established in 1932, the association is well known in the veterinary field for its high standards for hospitals and pet health care.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

Lettuce dishes are cool recipes for hot summer days

Lettuce, one of the earliest known vegetables, was heralded a few thousand years ago in Mediterranean lands as the "water plant," so history tells us, because it so well refreshed thirsty travelers along their way.

Quite refreshing on a sultry summer day is a heaping salad bowl of various kinds of lettuce, simply dressed with oil and vinegar and freshly ground black pepper, or combined with whatever else suits your fancy.

Lettuce graced the banquet tables of long-ago Persian kings, when the country was still known by that name. The famed Greek healer Hippocrates lauded its medicinal virtues; and the great philosopher Aristotle sang its praises in Rome of long ago.

Columbus is said to have carried seeds of lettuce and other vegetables to the Bahamas on his second voyage to the New World; and from Ponce de Leon's plantings in Puerto Rico came the sort of lettuce which the American colonists grew in their gardens, or so we are told. And when the Spanish padres set up their missions in California, they brought lettuce to the West Coast.

Also, I've read or heard somewhere or other that Henry VIII's gardener introduced lettuce into the royal kitchens.

So much for all that long-ago lore! We are enjoying lettuce today as much as our forebears did, I would say. And, much as I enjoy lettuce in simply dressed salads, I also like to enjoy it in other ways.

A true gastronomic treat to me is wilted lettuce (or other tender greens) made with a hot bacon dressing — and it's ever so easy.

per. Blend together and pour over crisp, chilled lettuce leaves or chunks. I like to sprinkle crumbled bacon over all.

A variation of this dish calls for combining shredded lettuce with chopped tomatoes and green onions, topped with crumbled bacon or ham bits, then doused with a cup of "red-eye gravy" — hot, of course — just before serving.

That old Southern favorite, red-eye gravy, is made by pan-frying a ham slice, then adding hot coffee (or water, if you prefer) to the luscious "burnings" or bits clinging to the skillet, and stirring like mad.

I also like stuffed lettuce, a nice touch for a summer luncheon:

Pepper, salt, hot pepper sauce to your taste
1/4 cup chopped green onion tops
1/4 cup chopped pecans or other nuts
Core the lettuce and hollow out the center, leaving a shell an inch or more thick all around. Cream together the cream cheese and bleu cheese (with both cheeses at room temperature). Blend in the mayonnaise until the mixture is smooth. Add seasonings, onions and nuts. Pack the mixture into the lettuce "bowl" and wrap in damp towels (paper or cloth), cover with foil and chill for a few hours. Slice and arrange on salad plates (clear glass for a cool, cool look).

Lettuce is also good as a cooked vegetable. I often shred lettuce and braise it in a little water or bacon drippings, cooking briefly until tender, but still somewhat crisp.

Backyard barbecue

Beef and vegetables perfect for grilling

Treat Dad and yourself to that favorite summer pastime—a backyard barbecue. Marinate-and-grill is a magic combination for summer cuisine.

Economical steak from the round, for example, is a great candidate for this type of cooking. One of the more versatile steaks, the beef top round, comes from the inside top muscle of the round. When marinated and grilled rare to medium, it's tender, juicy and delicious.

Grilled Southwestern Top Round Steak calls for a zesty tenderizing marinade with flavors made popular in southwestern cuisine. The steak is marinated in lime juice, salsa, garlic and black pepper for eight hours or overnight. The lime juice provides the acidic ingredient which helps to tenderize the meat fibers.

Once marinating is almost complete, it's time to fire up the grill. As a general rule, allow 30 minutes to grill one pound of meat. Ash-covered coals should be ready in about 30 minutes.

Grill beef top round steak over medium coals and serve carved into thin, juicy slices accompanied by Colorful Vegetables. This delightful medley of fresh zucchini, mushroom, bell pepper, tomato and green onion also cooks on the grill next to the steak during the last 10 minutes.

GRILLED SOUTHWESTERN TOP ROUND STEAK
1 1/2-pound beef top round steak, cut 1 inch thick
1/4 cup each fresh lime juice, bottled steak sauce and salsa (mild, medium or hot)

1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 teaspoon coarse grind black pepper
Salt, if desired
Colorful Vegetables
Combine lime juice, steak sauce, salsa, oil, garlic and black pepper in small saucepan. Bring to a boil; reduce heat. Simmer, uncovered, 5 minutes; cool. Place beef top round steak in plastic bag; add cooled marinade, turning to coat.

Close bag securely and marinate in refrigerator 8 hours (or overnight), turning occasionally. Remove steak from marinade; discard marinade. Place steak on grid over medium coals. Grill 22 to 26 minutes for rare (140° F) to medium (160°), turning once.

Season with salt, if desired. Approximately 10 minutes before steak is done, prepare Colorful Vegetables. Carve steak into thin slices and serve with vegetables. 6 servings.

COLORFUL VEGETABLES
2 tablespoons margarine or butter
2 medium zucchini, sliced
2 cups sliced mushrooms
1/2 green bell pepper, cut into 2 x 1/4-inch strips
1 teaspoon cumin seeds or 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon coarse grind black pepper
1 cup finely chopped tomato
1/4 cup chopped green onion.

Melt margarine in large heavy frying pan with heatproof handle on grid over medium coals. Add zucchini, mushrooms, green bell pepper, cumin seeds, salt and black pepper.

Cook and stir 4 to 5 minutes or until vegetables are crisp-tender. Add tomato and green onion; continue to cook and stir 1 minute. Serve with Grilled Southwestern Top Round Steak. Yield: 3 cups.

Chappy featured on MS Outdoors

Last week on Mississippi Outdoors, host Melvin Tingle went floundering on the Coast with Mike Snyder and Erwin Gaines. This week Melvin and John "Cappy" Chapman, Waveland resident and chef at Chappy's Restaurant, prepare the catch of flounder. Chappy cooks the fish whole and stuffs it with a mouth-watering filling. The Okatoma River in south Mississippi is the location of choice for a group of Sierra Club kayak students to put into practice what's been taught in a Jackson swimming pool.

Jackson veterinarian Rick Dunbar instructs Melvin on the proper way to care for hunting dogs during the hot summer months. He describes the early warning signs of heat exhaustion and suggests ways to safely cool down an overheated dog.

Pat Seele and co-host Mara Hartman unsuccessfully try to uncoil a boa constrictor or 'Outdoor Discovery.'

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

It's time to go fishin' y'all. Varrrooom, varrrrooom and off we went in a huge cloud of dust, oops, make that a huge cloud of sea spray. Well, maybe it was a little bit of ruffled water.

Anyway, the turtle went over to Ile La Petre and worked the flats hard with live shrimp, live croakers, and most of the plastic in his box.

Then he went to the Petite Pass and Grand Pass area and used the same baits. Then he cranked up the boat and went out to the Puffer Key area and used the same baits.

There was one exception to the baits being used; by the time the turtle arrived in the Puffer Key area, a lot of the live shrimp were now dead bait. The sum total of all the efforts in all of those areas produced nothing, nada, zilch. Bah humbug, foie.

Two important observations did come out of this fishin' trip that might be worth remembering for future trips. First, in the heat of the summer, the care and feeding of live shrimp takes a little more effort than it does in the cooler days of spring and fall.

Your aerator must be putting out big bunches of bubbles to keep oxygen in the water. This is because warm water holds less oxygen than cool water. So you gotta put mucho plenty air into the water fast and on a constant basis to keep your live shrimp from becoming dead bait.

Since cool water holds more oxygen than warm water, you can prolong the life of your shrimp and other live bait by adding a little bit of ice from your ice chest to the live bait bucket occasionally. This is one time where if a little bit works, then a whole big bunch should work mo' better, is not true. You only need add a handful of ice occasionally. You don't want to create ice water; you only want to add enough ice to keep the water in the bait bucket from becoming warm. Remember, warm water holds less oxygen than cool water.

The second lesson learned on this trip to the Louisiana marsh was an old lesson that I forgot about when fishing for white trout. You see, papa turtle told me many years ago that if you cannot catch anything else then you gotta start looking for the deep holes and fish for white trout.

What this turtle forgot is that the best time to fish for white trout, in the holes, is when the tide is slack or barely moving. This is the time that the fish are on the bottom of the hole checking out the menu.

When the tide is moving at a fast clip there appears to be too much turbulence for the fish to find their meals. I had this point really driven home on this trip when I pulled the boat up to the hole that I was going to fish. There were two other boats anchored on the edge of the hole.

We dropped anchor on the down current side of the hole and started fishin'. We managed to catch one keeper speck, two white trout, and a couple of ground mullet in about 15 minutes of bottom fishin' with shrimp.

I happened to look at the boats that were at the holes before us, and they were not fishin'. At this point they were gracious enough to holler over to us to tell us that they had to quit fishin' as they had all of the white trout that they wanted. They said they were getting ready to leave and we could have their spot. After profusely thanking them, we moved to their anchorage and proceeded to fish. In no time at all our anchor gave and we drifted over the hole.

The current was too strong and the hole too deep (approx. 100 feet) for our 125-foot of anchor rope. We kept trying, but were unable to catch even one fish. That's when the light bulb came on — white trout can be caught in deep holes as long as the tide is slack or barely moving. Stupid turtle.

This week's wonderful wise words: The thinking fisherman catches fish.

You better go back to Mr. Herbie's corner, turtle.

SECTION B

'Tis the season

Hurricane season starts; now is time to get ready

BY TRACI BONNEY

Audrey, Betsy, Camille, Frederick, Elena. Ordinary people's names, but also the names of major hurricanes that have hit the U.S. Gulf Coast in the last 35 years.

Audrey destroyed Cameron, La. Betsy caused more than a billion dollars' worth of damage.

Camille matched Betsy in monetary destructiveness, but killed 256 people in the U.S., more than three times the number of people killed in Betsy. Camille also all but destroyed Pass Christian.

Frederick killed only 5 people in the United States, but caused an estimated $2.3 billion in damage. Elena caused $1 billion in damage, killed four U.S. residents and led to the evacuation of a million people.

Hurricanes are not to be taken lightly.

The Coast has entered the official hurricane season, which lasts from June to November. Now — before any storm warnings are issued — is the time to get ready.

The tips offered below come from the Civil Defense office and a Hurricane Disaster Manual printed by Maelstrom Publishing of Florida.

The Civil Defense information is available in newsletter form at either the Civil Defense office behind the courthouse, or in a rack at the tax office on Main Street.

The Hurricane Disaster Manual, a thorough work whose only glaring error is that it places Pass Christian in Louisiana, is available at Bookends Book Store on Hwy. 90 in Bay St. Louis.

The main thing you need to decide is whether, if a hurricane should hit, you want to ride out the storm or evacuate. If you live in a low-lying, flood-prone area or a mobile home, your wisest choice is to leave if a hurricane heads this way.

EVACUATION

For those who plan to evacuate, the first step is to develop a family plan. This includes arranging a meeting place if you are separated when the hurricane warning is issued, assigning tasks to each family member to make the evacuation go smoothly (and to help combat any feelings of panic; busyness tends to crowd out fear), and designating a friend or relative outside the target area as a contact for other loved ones who may try to reach you during the storm.

Tasks for family members may include boarding or taping windows and glass doors, as well as weak metal or wood doors; turning off electrical, sewer, water and gas lines; and unplugging appliances. All these measures should be taken to help ensure your home's safety and sanitation during the hurricane.

Next, make sure your car is filled with gas, tuned up, and in good shape to make a long trip.

Put valuable family documents (inventories of household goods, insurance policies, birth certificates, etc.) into a water-proof, fireproof container if you cannot transport them, or into a portable file to take with you when you evacuate.

Any lists of special food, medication or medical equipment required by family members should go with you, in case an emergency arises. Copies of prescriptions are a must in the event you need to take someone to a doctor or hospital.

Map out your evacuation route, and make arrangements for lodging at your final destination. If you plan to stay with family or friends, let them know when you leave so they will have and estimated arrival time. If you don't make it in a reasonable length of time, they will be able to pass the information on to the authorities.

If you plan to stay in a hotel, or if your family or friends ask you not to bring your pets, you need to make arrangements for the animals' care and safety.

If evacuating from a heavily populated or low-lying area, leave early to avoid being caught in heavy traffic or rising waters.

Heed all emergency instructions; if authorities say not to take a certain route, don't. There may be a flooded road or washed-out bridge up ahead, or the traffic may simply be too heavy to accommodate more vehicles.

TAKING SHELTER

Those who plan to go to a shelter should go to the nearest designated one.

Take with you clothing; drinking water and non-perishable food for yourself and other family members, plus some extra to help the shelter, if you can; any required medicines and a first-aid kit; flashlight; battery-powered radio and extra batteries; and baby items (clothes, bedding, diapers, medicine and food).

Pets are not allowed in shelters, so you need to make arrangements in advance for their care.

Be ready to help in any way needed at the shelter, and plan to stay there until authorities say it is safe to leave.

RIDING OUT A STORM

If you plan to stay at home during a hurricane, you need to board up or tape windows, glass doors and weak metal or wood doors; stockpile a five-day supply of non-perishable food and water for each family member, and make sure any special food needs are well-stocked; ensure that an adequate supply of medicines and first-aid items are on hand; check radios, flashlights and batteries are in working order, and buy extra batteries.

You should also turn the settings in your refrigerator and freezer to maximum. When power is lost, the refrigerator/freezer can continue to keep foods for several days at maximum coolness settings, if you open the doors only when absolutely necessary.

Other precautions, such as cutting off power, sewer, water and gas switches, may become necessary as the storm gets closer.

You may also consider buying a power generator, especially if a family member needs electricity to operate medical equipment.

For information on what to do after the storm, as well as more information about getting ready for the storm, visit Bookends, the tax office or the Civil Defense office. In addition to written information, Civil Defense has available at its office and the public library an informative video cassette dealing with hurricane preparedness.

Civil Defense director Bobby Boudin said those interested in checking out the cassette will need their library card if they go to the library, or a check for $20 if they go to the Civil Defense office.

"We won't cash it, but we will hold it as a deposit. When the person brings back the tape, he gets his check back," Boudin explained.

LIVE THE LEGEND!

1991-92

On December 8, 1991 the Soviet republics of Russia, the Ukraine and Byelorussia signed an accord creating the Commonwealth of Independent States. The document's first paragraph said, in part, "That the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, as a subject of international law and geopolitical reality, is ceasing its existence."

During the following year, most other Soviet republics would sign the accord and millions of people would be unshackled from the communist system.

The world would never be the same again.

Meanwhile, in Hancock County

The issue of Dockside Gambling remained unsettled after being approved in a close vote in December, 1990.

Gambling's opponents and proponents battled over regulations, sites and number of casinos.

The county's first license was issued to Bay Cove Marina (Casino Magic Corporation), which is scheduled to open Labor Day, 1992.

The Mississippi Army National Guard 1355th Supply and Service Company of Bay St. Louis and Ocean Springs participated in Operation Desert Shield/Storm and returned home to a hero's welcome.

The Sea Coast Echo is there.
